Webster Spates, a special agent for the department of justice, testified he had overheard Robertson threaten to get" the senator. Spates said he came to Oklahoma to testify at the direction of his superiors in the department of justice and expected to have his expenses paid by Senator Gore.

Several depositions were read. In one, Howard B. Robertson was on the stand this morning, and Jacobs, it is said, will be called to give evidence in rebuttal.

Direct evidence for the plaintiff was concluded early this afternoon.

Summonses have been issued for the managers of the telegraph companies here with instructions to produce copies of telegrams exchanged between Oklahoma City and Washington at the time of the alleged attack. DISTRICT ATTORNEY FEARS GREAT LOSS.

Arizona Official Believes He Sees Plan to Take Government Lands.

PART OF RESERVATION

Indians Are Said to Have Attempted to Give Tracts Away.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13 .- A suggestion by Fred L. Ingraham, district attorney of Yuma county, Arizona, concerning a plan for selling without proper title 200,000 acres of Colorado Indian reservation caused government officials here to forward today to the Indian commissioner at Washington all available data so that any steps necessary to prevent the government's title being louded might be taken.

Ingraham sent by mail to Albert Schoonover, United States attorney for this district, all the information in his possession, involving the story of the metamorphosis of a native of France into an Indian chief and the donation by other members of the tribe of 200,-000 acres of land to the Frenchman's son, who also became a chieftain.

According to Ingraham, the French chief of the tribe was Moses Abromet, who emigrated from France to America many years ago, and lived for a time in Louisiana. When Mme, Abromet died, however, Abromet moved to Arizona, joined the Indians on the Colorado reservation in Yuma county and in time was made a chief. He died in 1902, and surviving tribesmen erected to his memory near Ebrenburg a monument of Arizona petrified wood in the rough eighty-nine feet high.

Lands Are Presented.

His son, Moses Abromet, Jr., was his only heir. He was said to have been a favorite among the Indians, as they not only made him a chief, but as early as 1888 set aside for him 200,-000 acres of land. The deed conveying the tract was signed by Langdow. his son; Rodney Overton, Three Feath-

Deeds are said to be on record at Yuma showing that Moses Abromet, Jr., who for a while made his residence in Helena, Mont., conveyed the 200,000 acres of land to William Graves in turn conveyed 100,000 acres to Robert Connely, formerly of Evansville, Ind., but now of Los Angeles.

It is through Connely's alleged of forts to dispose of the 100,000 acres to which he claimed title through C. I. Hinman, a realty operator of Los Angeles, that the attention of the Yuma and Los Angeles authorities was brought to the case.

Hinman, who desired to learn the exact legal status of the land, wrote certified copies of the deeds alleged to be on record there, and also instructed his agent in Washington, D. C., to learn from authorities at the
